

MINDY J TILLMAN

Software Developer

Writing code is the closest that I will ever get to winning a sports championship. There seem to be many components of athletic training-- strength, flexibility, technique, and endurance, for instance -- that have mental equivalents in computer programming. Solving problems in software development feels as exhilarating as scoring a goal or climbing a mountain. Looking forward, I anticipate sharing these victories with teammates-- what kinds of things will we be able to achieve together?
